W. & F. L. Mason, C. C. Burrill & Son, Ellsworth; Fred C. Lynam & Co., C. E. Marcy & Co., Frank E. Walls, Bar Harbor; L. Belle Knowles, Northeast Harbor, and B. E. Tracy, Winter Harbor.

Word was received here yesterday of the sudden death of Oren Burleigh, formerly of Ellsworth, at Fairfield, where he had been employed for years as foreman in a pulp mill. Mr. Burleigh was born in Ellsworth sixty years ago, leaving here about thirty years ago. He leaves a widow and one daughter—Mrs. Harry Brown, of Fairfield. He was a brother of Mrs. Byron Jameson and Mrs. Carrie Sargent, of Ellsworth.

The Sixth Maine Veteran association will hold its annual reunion here next Friday. Col. Charles A. Clark, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will be present, and there will be a big representation of his old comrades to welcome him. Gen. H. E. Hamlin, of Ellsworth, whose father, the late Vice-President Hannibal Hamlin, was an honorary member of the association, will preside as toastmaster at the campfire in the evening.

A severe squall, accompanied by lightning, struck Ellsworth last Thursday afternoon. Lightning took the telephone and telegraph lines, burning out transformers and fuses in several places, but doing no serious damage. Several trees were blown down about town. The heavy plate-glass in the front door of the Reliable Clothing Co.'s store was smashed when the door was slammed shut by the first puff of the squall. The barn of Mrs. Susan Murch, on Washington street, was struck by lightning and slightly damaged.

At a special meeting of the city government Monday evening, the committee to which was referred remonstrance against the gasoline tank on High street, reported that in its opinion the erection of the tank was a violation of a city ordinance forbidding the storage of explosives within eighty rods of any occupied dwelling. The city clerk was instructed to notify the Standard Oil Co. that such was the case, and asking it to appear by a representative at the regular meeting of the city government Monday evening, Aug. 7 and show cause why the tank should not be removed.

While Old Hunneman and Dirigo engines were fighting over old battles in Ellsworth on the Fourth, an old-time local rival who had often "carried the brooms" in Ellsworth, was winning laurels in Massachusetts. Watch City engine, of Waltham, Mass., formerly Union 2, of Ellsworth, took the first prize in a contest of a dozen crack tubs at Revere Beach, playing 220 feet and 1 inch, her nearest competitor playing 212 feet, and all the other contestants playing under 200 feet. By the way, a typographical error in THE AMERICAN last week made the contest between Hunneman and Dirigo appear closer than the official returns indicated. Hunneman's distance was 171 feet, 9 inches (not 174 feet 9 inches as reported), and Dirigo 175 feet. An effort will be made to have the Watch City here for firemen's day during Old Home week. She would be a drawing card.

NORTH ELLSWORTH.

Mrs. A. W. Nason spent last week at Ellsworth with her mother, Mrs. Mayo.

Mrs. Mary Moore has gone to Bangor to spend the summer with her daughter, Mrs. De Witte.

Miss Alice Lord, of Ellsworth, was the guest of Miss Ruth Maddocks during the week-end.

Mrs. Hannah Maddocks came home Friday, after visiting relatives in Portland and Kennebunk.

Wallace McGown and wife, of Bar Harbor, spent Sunday with Mrs. McGown's mother, Mrs. Mary Moore.

Mrs. Eugene Moore and two little daughters, Mildred and Marion, spent several days at Ellsworth last week.

Charles D. Rae left Wednesday for Honolulu, where he has a position with James Dole, owner of a large pineapple plantation.

Alphonso R. Nason and wife, employed at the insane asylum at Bangor, are spending their vacation with Mr. Nason's mother, Mrs. Abiah Nason.

During the shower Thursday afternoon a small house on the Gray farm was turned nearly half way around by the high wind. Limbs were torn from trees and blown away, and trees were blown down.

An emergency glue may be made of rice. Boil a handful of rice in water until it is a thick, fine paste. Very good for pasting white paper.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week
Beginning Aug. 20, 1911.

Topic.—Mountain scenes in Bible story.—Deut. xxxiv. 1-4; Matt. xvi. 1-4. (If convenient, a hilltop meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

There are some mountains standing on this earth of ours that seem almost conscious beings, and if they could but speak and tell what they have seen and felt the traveler who pauses at their base would tremble with alarm and awe. No one familiar with the history of the world can doubt or deny the truthfulness of the words just quoted. And how many of these historic mountain scenes are associated with the religious history of the world. "For some good reason God has usually chosen mountain summits as the theater on which to make the grandest exhibitions of Himself, perhaps because these grand and striking features in nature fix the locality of events—stand as mighty monuments to them—so that they can never fade from the memory of man." The psalmist said, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." Let us also look to the hills—the hills ever associated with thoughts of the Lord, our real helper, for help and inspiration.

Many historic mountain scenes, with our study and contemplation, are recorded in Bible story. There is Ararat, where the ark rested after the flood; Mount Moriah, where Abraham, "in will if not in deed," offered Isaac as a sacrifice to God; Sinai, amid whose terrific thunderings the divine law was given to man; Mount Pisgah, from whose heights Moses viewed the earthly Canaan and entered the heavenly Land of Promise; Mount Horeb, where God appeared to Elijah in the still, small voice; Carmel, where Elijah discomfited the priests of Baal; Mount Hebron, where Christ was transfigured; Olivet, where He agonized, and Calvary, where He gave Himself for the sins of the world, and last of all, in John's glorious vision the Mount of God! How much of the world's religious history is contained in these mountain scenes, and who can contemplate these events?

Each mountain scene of the Bible teaches its own particular lesson. Let us consider the following:

1. The Mountain of Vision. This title may be given to Mount Pisgah. Here Moses was permitted to see the land of promise, although he was not allowed to enter it. This vision was in a measure a compensation for his loss and was given in answer to his prayer that he might "see the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly mountain, and Lebanon." The hopes of life are not always realized, but visions of great things are no small compensation and prepare us for the trial through which we enter in to their fuller realization in the life to come.

2. The Mountain of Victory. Thus Mount Carmel may be designated. It was here that the religion of the only living and true God was tested by conflict with idolatry. The result was sure and decisive. True religion triumphed. We need fear no testing of our faith or anything that pertains to it. In every contest in the past the victory has been won. It will continue to be so until "in the name of Jesus every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."

3. The Mountain of Transfiguration. This scene in the life of Christ took place on snow capped Hermon. Here Christ was transfigured under such circumstances as would comfort and strengthen Him for His great sacrifice six months later and would later on confirm the faith of His disciples in Him. But after the Mount of Transfiguration came toil and contact with lack of faith in the valley. We, too, have our times of exalted experiences, but their purpose is but inspiration for the performance of new duties and the endurance of new trials.

4. The Mountain of Sacrifice. On Mount Calvary Jesus gave Himself for the world, for us, leaving us an example that we should sacrifice ourselves for others. On Calvary we not only see the fulfillment of God's plan of redemption, but we are also taught our greatest lesson in self sacrifice. The greatest of all gifts is self. The world needs and wants the personal touch, and nothing else can take the place of it.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. viii. 4, 20-22; Ex. xiii. 1-8; xxiv. 12-18; Gen. xli. 1-14; Deut. xxxii. 48-52; 1 Kings viii. 19-22, 25-39; Ps. cxxi; Matt. iv. 8; v. 1-12; xxviii. 10-20; Acts i. 1-12.

A Mission by Moonlight.
The moon is cold; the ocean air is chill;
Alone with lonely owls the mission stands.
The starting bell towers on the sands
That hold in Serra's grave the ever still Repose of mighty labor—love and will
In rest profound, where once the brooding bands
Of dark souled beings lifted up their hands
To God and heard the angel voices thrill.
Mute are the bells that called the nights
Of old,
Forever lost the charmed melody
That mingled with the sounding of the sea.
The lofty mountain through clouds of windy cold
Mocks in her silver faith their vanished gold.
The altar lights of warmth and mystery.
—Herbert Heron.

Mutual Benefit Column.

EDITED BY "AUNT MADGE".
Its Motto: "Helpful and Helpful."

The purposes of this column are succinctly stated in the title and motto—it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and helpful. Being for the common good, it is for the common use—a public servant, a purveyor of information and suggestion, a medium for the interchange of ideas. In this capacity it solicits communications, and its success depends largely on the support given it in this respect. Communications must be signed, but the name of writer will not be printed except by permission. Communications will be subject to approval or rejection by the editor of the column, but none will be rejected without good reason. Address all communications to THE AMERICAN, Ellsworth, Me.

TAKE HEART.

When, low in the west, the cloud-ships drift
And dark o'er the landscape the shadows shift,
When dull is the day, and the heart is lead,
Turn your face to the east; there is light ahead.

"Look up and not down; look out and not in;"
Make believe that the spirits of good are your kin;
Dwell not in the past, but live just for to-day,
And you'll never be worsted whatever the fray.

Dear M. B. Friends:
The poem was selected just for the title. When you have looked the column through, if you are good Yankees, you will be able to guess why.

The mercury, which has been climbing among the 90's for a week past, has descended to such a degree that persons can gather their mental faculties together a little and realize their physical ability to move about at their accustomed pace.

The chief question of the housewife in these seasons of heat, is how to make the work as light as possible, to get enough for the family to eat and get it in the easiest way. Even the systematic, methodical housekeeper, it would seem, could give a little "leeway" to the heat, and closing her eyes to some uncompleted tasks, find the coolest place in her vicinity and abide there as much as possible until the hot wave passes away.

I know it is all owing to the circumstances in which one is placed, whether or not advantage can be taken so that work can be lessened. If the demand is always for the hot 12 o'clock dinner, then lemonade, cold meats or salads will be of no avail. No summer drink is more cooling and healthful than lemonade. The acid is good for "the system", and I believe the use of it prevents some diseases. More than that, it is within the reach of all, and lemons in hot weather should be looked upon as a necessity more than a luxury.

Will some of the nieces give us their views on bread-making, and the different qualities of yeast, whether compressed, liquid or magic? Here is one excellent method:

Take about a cup of sweet milk in a dish and pour in boiling-water enough to make a quart of liquid; let it stand till blood warm, then add a yeast cake and let stand until that is dissolved. Stir this into two or three quarts of flour in which two tablespoons of salt, two-thirds cup of sugar and about two tablespoons of lard have been mixed; mix hard and knead thoroughly.

Especially care should be taken that the temperature of the milk and water is just right—not too hot, or the yeast plants will be destroyed. This recipe makes excellent rolls:

Egg Biscuits.—Sift together a quart of dry flour and three heaping teaspoonsful of baking powder. Rub into this thoroughly a piece of butter the size of an egg, and two well-beaten eggs, a tablespoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt. Mix all together quickly into a soft dough, with one cup of milk, or more if needed. Roll out nearly half an inch thick, cut into biscuits and bake immediately in a quick oven.

SUGGESTIONS TO TRY.

Onions are almost the best nerve tonic known. They are most useful in cases of nervous prostration, and will greatly assist in toning up the system. They are useful in all cases of coughs, colds, influenza, scurvy and kindred complaints. Eaten every other day, they soon have a whitening and clearing effect on the complexion.

Instead of spreading out sheets and ironing them by themselves, try this plan: Fold the sheet in half, then quarter, lay on ironing board as though to iron. Now iron the rest of clothes on top of sheet, turning it between pieces so as to reach all parts, finally folding and begin on another sheet. In this way sheets will be ironed better and easier than doing them separately.

To put a new wick in a lamp, push through the top of burner, and it will go in much easier than through the bottom.

Old bread browned to a crisp in the oven, then rolled fine or ground in food grinder, mixed with equal parts of flour, is much better for croquettes, fried oysters, etc., than any "bought" cracker dust.

Try this easy way to hem-stitch: Draw the required number of threads. Turn the hem down, and tack with the edge in the centre of the drawn threads. Lessen the tension of your machine and stitch as near the edge of the hem as possible. Remove the tacking threads; take the garment in one hand, and the hem in the other, and pull the edge of the hem to the bottom of the drawn threads. This is very quickly done, and can scarcely be distinguished from hand work. Hem-stitched tucks are made on the same principle.

I have seen hem-stitching done by this method, and it was very satisfactory.

In closing, I would like to call on each of my many nieces by name and learn how and where you all are. I know how the time of many is occupied—company, haying, berrying, heat, and all—but where are Melissa, Joan, and very many others from whom we have not heard for a long, long time?

We had a girl in the column once—Lura

A Cured Man.

ANNAPOLIS, N. S., Jan. 31, 1911.
Manager of Maine Keeley, Portland, Me.:
Dear Sir:—It has been several years since I took the Keeley Cure and will say that during all this time I have never had the least desire for any kind of stimulants. I wish I had taken the Cure 10 years before I did. Sincerely yours, Jos. McMillan, Annapolis, Royal, Nova Scotia.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."

—Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

—and she wrote us letters and sent us recipes of her own trying. Now, while the mothers and aunts are all so busy, we would love to have a girls' column one week. I am almost tempted to call some by name—like Edith, Ruth, Mary Florence—and say: Send us some recipes you have tried, and tell us what kinds of housework and fancy work you like to do. Best wishes to all from

AUNT MADGE.

KITTERY TO CARIBOU.

Despondent because of ill health, Charles Mansell of Ripley, committed suicide by shooting last Wednesday.

The storage power-house of the Biddeford-York electric road was struck by lightning and burned Thursday. Loss, $7,000.

Fire at Biddeford Saturday night destroyed half a dozen frame business blocks and tenements. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Marjorie Stevens and Lelia Loverin, of Auburn, aged fifteen, were drowned at Taylor pond on the Fourth. They stepped into a deep hole while bathing.

George M. Herrick, of Bethel, aged fifty, accidentally shot himself on the Fourth while celebrating with an automatic pistol, and died a hours days later.

Lightning struck the dome on the state house at Augusta Thursday afternoon, but passed off into the ground through the steel supports without doing any damage.

News of the death of her husband, Edward Porter, who was drowned in Caribou Tuesday, July 4, while in bathing, so prostrated his young wife that she did not recover, and died Wednesday from the shock.

Harry Norwood, of Bangor, a carpenter aged twenty-five, was killed Thursday afternoon, when a barn on which he was working was blown down by the wind. In the same squall, the Wild West show tent at Maplewood park, Bangor, collapsed, injuring five persons, none fatally. One boy had an ear torn off.

The saw-fly which destroyed thousands of dollars worth of hackmatack about thirty years ago has now attack Maine's most valuable timber assets, the spruce of the big north woods. The saw-fly lodges on the edge of a big spruce growth, and as it increases in numbers, spreads into the woods and eats the leaves. The trees have every appearance of having been swept by fire. The big pulp companies have called upon the State department of agriculture for help. The pest is making serious trouble in the forests above Moxie. G. A. Yeaton, of the department, states that the pest has developed so far that nothing can be done this year to check it, but that early next spring measures must be taken to spray the trees or introduce some parasite that will prey upon the fly.

SURRY.

Varden Lord is home from Bangor. Roy Gaspar has returned to Seal Harbor. Work is suspended on the new church through haying.

The Methodist society is rehearsing the drama, "The Heart of a Hero." Capt. Charles Sinclair has returned from Bangor, where he has been coaching with his brother, Ran Sinclair, of East Surry. July 10.

ANON.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the starving days when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood-purifier and tonic—say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and without doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.—Advt.

Among the Grangers.

This column is devoted to the Grange, especially to the granges of Hancock county. The column is open to all grangers for the discussion of topics of general interest, and for reports of grange meetings. Make letters short and concise. All communications must be signed, but names will not be printed except by permission of the writer. All communications will be subject to approval by the editor, but none will be rejected without good reason.

DATES.

Monday, Aug. 14—Field meeting of Hancock Pomona grange at Bluehill mineral spring.

FLORAL, 158, NORTH BUCKSPORT.
Floral grange at its last meeting instructed a candidate in the first and second degrees. A special meeting was held later, and the third and fourth degrees were conferred. The grange has met with a great loss in the death of Worthy Master Joseph L. Gordon. He was one of God's noblemen and his loss will be felt not only in his family and the grange, but also in the community.

SEAGIRT, 471, SOUTH DEER ISLE.
Seagirt grange met in regular session July 1. One candidate was instructed in the third and fourth degrees and welcomed as a brother. Refreshments were served, after which Capt. No. 2 presented a program of thirty-one numbers as follows: Eighteen readings, four conundrums, four songs, one speech, one declamation, two anecdotes, one original reading.

GOOD WILL, 378, AMHERST.
Good Will grange met Saturday evening, with a good attendance. There was one visitor from Castine grange. On account of the resignation of Worthy Master Dunham, L. E. Crosby was elected and installed. One candidate was instructed in the third and fourth degrees.

JOHN DORITY, 381, SULLIVAN.
John Dority grange met as usual June 30. One name was accepted by ballot and the first and second degrees were conferred on one candidate. The sewing club held an apron sale at the grange hall Saturday afternoon and evening, July 1, which netted about $10.

NARRAMISSIC, 224, ORLAND.
The regular meeting of Narramissic grange was held July 1, with the largest attendance for many months. It was voted to invite A. Lincoln Kirk, of Fort Jervis, N. J., elocutionist and impersonator, to give an entertainment in August. It was also voted to take a vacation until the last of August.

HARBORSIDE, 478, SOUTH BROOKSVILLE.
Harborside grange met June 28, with treasurer in the chair and about twenty members present, and one visitor from Durham, Conn. After business a short program was given, including music by orchestra and speeches by members and visitor. There will be work in the first and second degrees at the next meeting.

BAYSIDE, 476, ELLSWORTH.
At the regular meeting of Bayside grange July 5, three candidates were instructed in the first and second degrees. On account of the heat and the tired feeling that comes after the Fourth, the attendance was small and there was no program. At the next meeting the third and fourth degrees will be worked. Sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee will be served. Members are requested to contribute same.

MARIAVILLE, 441.
Mariaville grange met July 8, with a good attendance, and two visitors present. The literary program was given by the sisters, in the contest between the sisters and brothers. At the next meeting the brothers will furnish the program. Scores will not be announced until the last night. It was voted to hold meetings every two weeks through July and August. The next meeting will be July 22.

OCEAN VIEW, 508, CENTER.
Ocean View grange held its regular meeting July 6 with twenty patrons present. The first and second degrees were conferred on one candidate. There will be work in the third degree at the next regular meeting.

NEW CENTURY, 356, DEDHAM.
Three applications for membership were received in New Century grange July 8. A feature of the entertainment, besides old-time songs, music and readings, was an old-fashioned spelling-match. At the next meeting minstrel songs with costumes will be sung; watermelons for refreshments.

RAINBOW, 303, NORTH BROOKSVILLE.
Rainbow grange held no meeting July 6, on account of the heavy shower.

A Scotch minister was asked to pray for rain. He did so, and the rain came down in floods and destroyed the crops. Irritated at the result, one disgusted elder confided to another that "this comes o' intristin' sic a request to a meenister who isna aequint wi' agriculture."

A tiny West Newton, Mass., miss is responsible for the following version of the Adam and Eve story, we believe: "God made Adam, and he put him in a big garden, an' Adam he was so, so lonesome; an' then He putted him to sleep, He did, an' then He took out his brains and made a woman of the brains, an' then Adam he wasn't lonesome any more."

Honest Medicines Versus Fakes
President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it remains to-day its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Sold by all druggists.

COUNTY NEWS.

BLUEHILL.

Ralph Mayo, of Waltham, is spending his vacation here.

Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Bailey are at "The Maples" for the summer.

Misses Gertrude and Elizabeth Clough are spending the summer here.

The relief corps of James A. Garfield post has declared a recess until Sept. 2.

Miss Charlotte E. Morton, of Boston, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. H. E. Morton.

F. B. Richards and family, of Cleveland, O., are occupying the Rich log cabin at Parker Point.

Miss Flora Hinckley, of Boston, is spending her vacation with her father, E. F. Hinckley.

Miss Abby Partridge is spending a few weeks in Bangor, the guest of Dr. D. W. Bunker and wife.

Mrs. John Teagle is at her summer home at Parker Point. Mrs. Frank Teagle and children, of Cleveland, joined her last week.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Bluehill enjoyed a safe and sane Fourth of July. Only words of praise are heard for the work of the committee in charge—R. W. Carter, A. S. Whitman and J. W. Kane.

Everything went on schedule time, and was very fine. The "horribles" were first on the program, and prizes were as follows: Harold Henck, first; John Chase, second; Howard Osgood, third.

100 yards dash—Carl Fernstrom, first; Basil Barrett, second; time, 10 4-5 seconds.

Bag race—Percy Saunders, first; Howard Osgood, second.

220 yards dash—Carl Fernstrom, first; Basil Barrett, second; time, 25 4-5 seconds.

Bicycle race—Clifton Nevells, first; Louis Mass, second.

Boys' bicycle race—Harold Osgood, first; Edward Snow, second.

Half-mile run—J. Warren Kane, 1; Ralph Townsend, 2.

Potato race, won by Percy York.

Potato race for boys—John Chase, 1; Frank Mello, 2; Walter Littlefield, 3.

Seventy-five yards dash for boys under twelve years—Harold Osgood, 1; Edward Snow, 2. Time, 9 seconds.

Tug-of-war—Won by the crew captained by W. N. Owen.

Frank Mello and William Marks tied the pie-eating contest. Percy Saunders took the dollar bill from the top of the greased pole.

N. H. Mayo, F. B. Snow, J. E. Mortell, R. W. Carter, W. W. Westcott acted as judges, and E. E. Chase, Jr., as starter.

The committee thanks the public for the interest taken and other liberal help financially.

The ball game was called on account of rain in the first of the fourth inning, the score being: Firemen company, 4; Bluehill, 2. The dance in the town hall was well attended. Atherton's orchestra of eight pieces furnished music. Plans are already on foot for July 4, 1912.

THE MILL

How a Picture Was Painted
Under an Inspiration

By EDWARD GILLETTE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

There is no more dainty bit of scenery, to my thinking, than one of those little patches up, tumbledown, moss-covered water mills of the olden time. They are always situated at the lower end of a pond, nestling under trees and half buried in shrubbery. They speak of a past when farmers were used to carrying a sack or two of grain to mill on horseback before them to have it ground. Now the grain is grown on bigger farms in bigger bulk, and the individual farmer's product is lost in a great cereal river that flows to mills driven by steam and with stacks towering hundreds of feet high. Progress is there, but the little water mill of the past is only useful to furnish themes for the artist.

I am one of these knights of the brush myself. One day, coming upon such a simple scene as I have mentioned, I opened my three-legged stool, set up my easel and began to work in my colors. I have the picture I made of the mill, and no money would induce me to part with it. There is a story connected with it, told me while I was painting, which, appealing to my fancy, rendered my work especially successful. The picture and the story go together.

While I was at work a man under a faded straw hat and suspenders uncovered by coat or waistcoat came up behind me and looked at my work. He was a middle-aged countryman, with those furrows in his face that seem to be transferred there from his eyes being constantly fixed on furrows made by his plow. He seemed to take a deep interest in my picture.

"There's some'n wanted on that little space beside the wheel," he said. "What's that?" I asked. "A boy and a girl."

"What boy and girl?"

"Some'n happened there once. I kin tell 'y' about it if 'y' want to hear it."

"Go ahead."

"It's about myself and the girl. I was nigh on to seventeen, and Janey was fifteen. Children haven't got any sense, and Janey wasn't much past being a child. We had been playin' together when we was at an age to play, and now we was a little older we kept on playin' together. Anyway, Janey was a wild little thing and up to all sorts of pranks. What I was doin' about this time I'm speakin' of was tryin' to keep her from tumblin' off the peak of the barn roof, or fallin' down through a hole in the hayward floor, or gittin' drowned in the pond."

"One day we was over there where a dirt road led down to the mill. It's all grown over with grass now, but you can see where it was. At that time the mill was run whenever there was any grain to grind, and when there wasn't the water was turned off the sluice. That day it was turned off."

"The first thing I knew Janey she climbed out on to the wheel. Her weight was just enough to turn it and let her down slow. While she was slakin' she looked at me and laughed. It was a purty enough laugh, but somehow I didn't like to see her goin' down into that hole, 'cause there wasn't any way for her to get out. It was walled in, except near the top, where an opening had been left to let the water out. Of course when Janey got to the bottom the wheel stopped turnin'."

"Then I asked Janey to stand on it and let me turn it and her back agin', but she got off and dared me to come down. I can see her eyes now just as they looked then with a lot of devilry in 'em."

"There was two simpletons instead of one. I got on to the wheel, and it turned quicker with my weight than with hers. I joined her at the bottom, and she was amusin' herself in all sorts of ways, dancin' and runnin' around the wheel and hollerin' to hear how queer it sounded down there. Two or three times I tried to get her to let me take her out. It wouldn't be an easy matter in any event. The only way it could be done was for us to balance each other by climbin' on opposite sides of the wheel. But if the water should be turned on we couldn't do that."

"First thing I knew I heard some'n moved sudden above, and down come the water. I looked at Janey, scared out of my boots, but Janey seemed to consider it a good joke, the little fool, and began to dance about in the water on the stone floor. But gradually the water rose. From the bottom to the lowest part of the wheel it was up to our necks. I lifted Janey on to the wheel and got up myself. The only thing for us to do was to climb as the wheel turned."

"I shouted with all my might, hopin' the miller would hear me. But he was inside the mill, and the noise of the water down where we was was enough to drown any boy's voice. I looked about for some'n to stop the wheel with, but there wasn't a stick as long as my arm anywhere. The only hope I had was that the miller had a small lot of grist to grind and he'd sit through before we was tired out. But I didn't think he'd start the mill for less than two or three hours' grist.

"Janey stood up well for about half an hour—it seemed four times as long—then she began to give out. The only thing I could do with her was to brace her up by puttin' my arm back of her. She didn't seem frightened or ready to cry, but she looked at me with a tired smile and kept on workin' the treadmill."

"But purty soon she got so tired I knew she'd have to git a rest, and I looked about for some'n to cling to away from the wheel. There was a break in the old wall surroundin' the wheel that left one of the stones so we could git our hands on it. I pushed off with Janey, and we clung to the stone."

"We got a kind of a rest, but it wasn't pleasant being in water over our heads keepin' ourselves up that way, and Janey's teeth began to chatter. I was beside myself with terror for her. It was she who was puttin' the best face on it all, sayin' that the grist would soon give out and the water would be turned off. But I knew that her strength was goin', and I dreaded a time when it would leave her all at once."

"Then I tried hollerin' agin', but I hadn't as much power behind my voice as I had when I called before and couldn't make as much noise."

"I knew I'd got to do some'n or purty soon it would be all over with us. It occurred to me that if I could get my weight on to the side of the wheel that was goin' up the motion would be slower. I asked Janey if she could hold on where she was for awhile. She said she could, but I knew she couldn't."

"I had to put my arm around her, and, partly by swimmin' and partly by clingin' to the wall, I worked my way toward the back of the wheel. The hardest place to pass was between the wheel and the wall. I expected both of us would be crushed."

"When I got by that part of it and got Janey and myself a-hold of the wheel I felt better. But we couldn't stop the wheel; all we could do was to cling to it till it pulled us out of the water and then catch hold lower down. I did this, but Janey could only keep changin' her hands all the while as the wheel revolved, she bein' supported in the water. Knowin' that this was our only chance, I threw all the strength left in me into my work, lettin' the wheel pull me almost up to the water runnin' above, stayin' there and lettin' go my hold first with one hand, then with the other. But as I was hangin' in the air and wasn't buoyed by water it was awful hard work, especially after what I'd been through. Still, there's hardly a limit to the endurance of a boy of sixteen."

"All of a sudden I saw the miller lookin' down on us. I didn't have to holler, and he didn't say a word. He ran away, I heard the sluice close, and in another minute he was back with a ladder, which he put down and, comin' down himself, first took Janey in his arms and carried her out. He was comin' back for me, but I let go the wheel and swam for the ladder by myself. I tried to climb up it, but it was no go; the miller reached down and dragged me out."

"When I got up I saw Janey lyin' on the grass with her eyes closed, limp and white as a cloth. Thinkin' she was dead, I gave a cry and, bendin' down over her, lifted her in my arms. The miller said she'd only fainted and would come to herself purty soon. And he was right. In another moment she opened her eyes, and, seein' me, what do you suppose she did?"

"What?"

"She just smiled the same kind of a smile as when she was goin' down on the wheel."

"My friend," I said at the conclusion of his story, "I wish I had you and Janey right here at the age you then were that I might work you into my painting."

"If you'll come with me up the road a bit I'll show you two young uns that'll do as well," he replied.

I went with the man, who stopped at a little house beside the road. We entered and found a middle-aged woman ironing.

"There's Janey," he said. Turning to her, he added, "Where are the children?"

"Janey's upstairs, and I sent Dick to the store. He'll be back in a few minutes."

A girl about fifteen came down at her mother's call, and there was Janey sure enough. I asked permission to make a sketch of her, and when her brother, two years her senior, came in I did the same with him. Then I gave each a good fee for serving as models, and after drinking a glass of milk which was urged upon me I took my leave.

Going back to the mill, I finished my picture under the inspiration occasioned by the story connected with it. As I worked I thought which of the different scenes through which the youngsters had passed I would introduce on the canvas. I knew that to place Janey on the grass just recovering from her fainting would be effective, but I rather favored putting her on the wheel when she first stepped on to it and smiling at her boy companion, his own expression denoting his anxiety. I decided upon the latter feature, and, taking to my studio the sketches I had made, I worked them in when I felt in the mood for it. I succeeded far better in depicting the required expression than I had hoped for. The picture hangs in my studio and has often been admired. I have had many offers for it, but it is the only picture I have ever painted wherein there is a story I have heard at first hand. For this reason I have never been willing to part with it.

A VERY MEAN FELLOW

By HARRY MENDENHALL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

They had arrived at that critical period—an approaching engagement. Every indication pointed to their forming a binary system, but the slightest jar might disturb the equilibrium and send both far from each other into space. All weaknesses were carefully put away where they could not be seen, and only the noblest sentiments were exhibited. At this juncture he perpetrated a bit of waggery that came very near spoiling the whole thing.

"What I object to in your sex," he said, "is your want of charity for each other."

"Nonsense! We are no more uncharitable toward women than you men are toward men."

"A woman will never forgive a woman for doing what, under similar circumstances, she would do herself."

"Give me an instance."

"Well, if you were to know a girl that a man had kissed—"

"Not being engaged?"

"Not being engaged—you would consider her impure."

"I would consider that he had wronged her."

"And you would condemn her."

"That depends upon circumstances. What man does the kissing?"

"I."

"You?"

"Yes."

"Who is this girl who has so little respect for herself?"

"As Aaron Burr said, 'I never kiss and tell.'"

"When did you kiss her?"

"This morning."

"Where?"

"Down by the lake."

Her tone was getting colder with every question and her color rising with every reply.

"Had you any respect for her?"

"Lots."

"Have you any respect for her now?"

"Just as much as before she kissed me."

"Kissed you?"

"Yes; she gave me the kiss, but I, with mock gravity, 'was too pure minded to keep it. I gave it back to her.'"

"H'm."

There was a silence for some minutes. They were sitting in a rustic seat, the man cutting off overhanging leaves with a slender cane, the girl poking the dirt beneath her with the end of a parasol. He had been making love to her, and she considered that this kissing another girl was abominable and his telling her of it affronting. Nevertheless she was too proud to reproach him.

"It's time for me to go and dress for dinner now," she said.

"I'm sorry you are going away blaming me for kissing this girl."

"Oh, I suppose you men think you are entitled to take what you can get. You have no principle. I condemn you for that and the girl for permitting you. In this case, since the girl kissed you first, she must be shameless."

They had reached the door, and she went into the house looking very sulky.

During the next few days he was so devoted, even loving, that she forgave him. He said he thought she should forgive the girl he kissed as well, but she replied that her part was not a matter of forgiveness, but of opinion. Her opinion was that a girl who would permit any man to whom she was not engaged to kiss her could have no self-respect. As to a girl kissing a man under such circumstances, such a girl was not to be considered by the respectable members of her sex.

The flowers were growing more fragrant and the love passages warmer. She was quite sure he would propose, but he seemed in no hurry to come to the point. She was growing impatient to hear his "story," especially as they were to separate in a few days. While sitting on the rustic seat before mentioned she felt his arm stealing around her waist. He drew her to him till their cheeks were very near. He kissed her.

Her criticism of a few days before had slipped her mind.

He did not propose at the time, but she was sure a proposal was coming. Then one day he told her that he had tested her and found her wanting. She asked him what he meant, and he said that he would not approve of a girl who would permit a man to kiss her to whom she was not engaged.

He must have been a very brave man to do that; certainly he was a very mean one. To drop a spark into a keg of powder would be a comparatively safe thing. She gave him just one look, then got up, and, with head erect, nostrils expanded and eyes flashing, started to walk away from him. But he caught her skirt and held on for dear life. She turned to writher him with another look and saw him with a smile on his lips, a half-merry, half-frightened look in his eye.

"Forgive me," he said. "The temptation was too great for me."

"Go to that other girl whom you doubtless led—"

"Do you know who that other girl is?"

"No, and I don't wish to know."

"She is my little friend Lella. Her age is five. If she didn't kiss me before being engaged to me she never would, for I hope to be married before she is much older."

Peace was declared and they were married, but his wife has never entirely forgiven him.

The Ignoble George IV. Then there was the precious regent. What a creature! Good men and bad men unite in saying that he was absolutely without a virtue. The shrewd, calculating Grenville described him in words that burn; the great Duke, his chief subject, used language of dry scorn. "The king could only act the part of a gentleman for ten minutes at a time," and we find the commonest satirists of the court despising the wicked fribble who wore the crown of England. Faithless to women, faithless to men, a coward, a liar, a mean and groveling cheat, George IV. nevertheless clung to a belief in his own virtues, and if we study the account of his farcical progress through Scotland we find that he imagined himself to be a useful and genuinely kindly personage. No man, except perhaps Philippe Egalite, was ever so contemned and hated, and until his death he imagined himself to be a good man. —Runciman "Sidelights."

Her Splendid Economy. Their dinner for two cost $15, but the man's wife argued that in the end it was economy to dine at an expensive restaurant because it gave her a chance to study the fashions.

"If we ate in some cheap place patronised only by dowdily dressed women," she said, "I would have to hire an expensive woman to design my new dresses, but by eating here I get a chance to study the clothes worn by women of position and can design my own gowns."

That sounded convincing. There was no blessing on earth, the man reflected, equal to an economical, managing wife, and he settled the bill with comparative cheerfulness. Three weeks later he was given another bill to settle. That called for $150.

"What is this for?" he demanded.

"Oh," she replied, "that is the cost of a dress I copied in the restaurant the other night." —New York Sun.

Hotels as Hospitals. "Next to a hospital give me an up to date hotel in which to take care of a very sick patient," said a New York trained nurse. "I've nursed in most of the big hotels here in New York, and it's really wonderful the supplies that can be brought at a moment's notice. Ice bags, hot water bottles, crutches and wheel chairs are always on tap, there's always some one available to help lift a patient, and if the patient's a man there's always a barber at hand to shave him. And there's the woman in the sewing room to stitch a rapidly cut binder. There's an operating room at your disposal if surgery has to be resorted to, and there's a protected roof to take your patient to during convalescence. Altogether the modern hotel is the rival of a hospital when it comes to conveniences for the sick." —New York Sun.

Curious Transference of Heat. A workman in the observatory at Toulouse has invited attention to a singular phenomenon. A bar of iron is taken by the end, and the other end is plunged into a fire, heating it strongly, but not so much that the hand cannot retain its hold. The heated end is then plunged into a pail of cold water. Immediately the other end becomes so hot that it is impossible to hold it. This phenomenon, familiar to workmen in iron, is ascribed by them to some repellent action they suppose the sudden cold exerts upon the heat contained in the iron, which is thus driven to the opposite extremity. —Chicago Record-Herald.

Bully. An Irishman and his English friend were out rabbit shooting. They had been very unsuccessful and were returning downhearted when they saw a hare dart out of the hedge.

Mike, in amazement, failed to shoot, and the hare escaped.

"Why didn't you shoot it?" asked the Englishman.

"Shure," said Mike, "I didn't see it till it was out of sight." —London Ideas.

Clever Man. With a sigh she laid down the magazine article upon Daniel O'Connell. "The day of great men," she said, "is gone forever."

"But the day of beautiful women is not," he responded.

She smiled and blushed. "I was only joking," she explained hurriedly. —Western Christian Advocate.

Didn't Need It. A book canvasser went into a barber shop and asked the proprietor if he could sell him an encyclopedia.

"What's that?" asked the barber.

"It's a book that contains information on every subject in the world."

There was a victim in the chair, and he put in feebly, "He doesn't need it!"

The Queer Part. "Queer, isn't it, that lawyer is such a lover of dogs?"

"What is there queer about it?"

"It is more natural for a lawyer to become attached to the fee-line species!" —London Telegraph.

Lost. Weary Walker—I lost 'arf a crown yesterday. Tired Timotheus—Did 'y 'ave a 'ole in yer pocket? Weary Walker—No; the bloke wot dropped it heard it fall.—London Tit-Bits.

Its Penalty. Artist (indignantly)—You talk as if painting an ugly woman's portrait for money was a crime.

Friend—I believe it is generally a hanging matter.—Baltimore American.

The highest friendship must always lead us to the highest pleasure.—Fielding.

WEDNESDAY JULY 12, 1911.

The elevation of Mr. Justice Whitehouse to the chief-justiceship of the supreme judicial court of Maine by Gov. Plaisted meets with the approbation of bench, bar and public, and his name adds one more to the list of distinguished chief-justices of Maine.

The meeting here next Friday of the 6th Maine Veteran association to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its mustering in for service in the Civil war is a notable event. While the survivors of those exciting times will congratulate themselves that they are still living, the memory of those who are gone cannot fail to add a tinge of sadness to the occasion.

The mass meeting at Hancock hall last week to talk over Old Home week plans resulted in dispelling the least doubt as to the affair being carried out on the plans already outlined in these columns. The week of Aug. 6-12 promises to be an epoch-making even in Ellsworth's history, and not even inclement weather can now prevent it from being an unqualified success.

The nominations made last Thursday by Gov. Plaisted were among the most important which have been made during his term. They include the nomination of William Penn Whitehouse, of Augusta, as chief-justice of the supreme judicial court to succeed Chief-Justice Emery, resigned; Hon. George M. Hanson, of Calais, as associate justice; Hon. John S. P. H. Wilson, of Auburn, as chairman of the inland fisheries and game commission, and of John F. Connelly, of Bangor, as commissioner of labor, and factory inspector.

COUNTY GOSSIP.

Our Surry correspondent boasts a dahlia in full bloom, and asks if anyone in the county can beat that.

Amos Hodgkins, of Lamaine, aged eighty-eight years, walked five miles, July 3, to spend the Fourth with relatives at Egypt.

The cyclonic squall which struck some sections of Hancock county last Thursday afternoon, did considerable damage. Several barns were leveled, and many trees were blown down. At Waltham the wind played a queer prank at George L. Jordan's place, cutting some eight or ten feet from the end of the barn, leaving the rest of the building intact.

Bar Harbor Hospital Report.
The thirteenth annual report of the Bar Harbor hospital has been issued. The pamphlet contains a list of donations received during the year of 1910, a memorial to John S. Kennedy, whose death occurred October 31, 1909, and a list of the life members.

During the year, 232 patients were received and treated, the largest number in any one corresponding period since the hospital has been opened. One hundred and fifty-one of these patients have been treated in the surgical wards and fifty-seven in the medical wards. There have been twelve obstetrical cases and twelve births. Four patients have died in the hospital during the year.

The total receipts in money during the year have amounted to $23,297.71. The cost of maintaining the hospital during the same period has been $9,155.75.

Two beds in perpetuity have been endowed during the past year, one by the Countess de Laugier Villars in memory of her late husband, and one by the will of Abner G. Murphy, of Philadelphia, for the benefit of the citizens of Seal Harbor.

The trustees have been notified that by the terms of the will of the late John S. Kennedy the sum of $5,000 has been bequeathed to the general fund of the hospital.

The trustees have purchased for the hospital the several lots of land directly in front of the present hospital buildings and facing Wayman lane, so that the hospital property now extends from Wayman lane to Hancock street.

Dr. J. H. Fatten has been elected a member of the medical staff.

The annual entertainment and children's fair were held as usual last summer and were most successful in every way. The former realized the sum of $4,001.55 and the latter $406.55.

"Three dollars a minute," said the youth who had asked the long-distance telephone rate between him and the town where resided the lady fair. "Yes, sir," asserted the telephone clerk. "I guess I'm not on speaking terms with her," sighed the youth, sadly counting out $2.50 which was in his purse.

ELLSWORTH TAXES.

List of Property Owners Assessed More Than $100.

The total commitment for this year's tax placed in the hands of Collector John H. Bresnahan yesterday is $51,133.27. There is a decrease of $15,037 in the total assessed valuation of Ellsworth real and personal estate from last year.

Last year the tax was committed to the collector in May. The delay in commitment this year is due to the fact that the last State legislature failed to provide by the emergency clause for the commitment of the State tax, and the city assessors could not complete their assessment until the warrant for the State tax was received.

At a special meeting of the city government Monday evening, contract with Tax Collector Bresnahan was signed and attached bond accepted. In consideration of the late date at which the book reached the collector, some changes were made in the terms of contract as to times of payment. The first $10,000 is to be paid to the treasurer Sept. 1 instead of August 1; at least $5,000 by the first of each subsequent month, and at least 75 per cent. by settlement date in February, 1912, the balance of tax to be cleaned up by settlement date in February, 1913. The compensation of the collector this year is $1,400, or $200 less than last year.

The following table shows the valuation of this year, with the figures of last year for comparison:

	1910	1911
Resident real estate	$1,338,435	$1,323,410
Non-res. real estate	133,400	144,800
Resident personal	522,379	515,296
Non-resident personal	13,376	9,047

The above shows a decrease in resident real estate of $15,025, an increase in non-resident real estate of $11,400, a decrease in resident personal estate of $7,083 and a decrease in non-resident personal estate of $4,329; net decrease, $19,715. There is an increase of sixteen polls.

The assessment for the year, with the figures of last year for comparison, is as follows:

	1910	1911
State tax	$10,699.19	$12,468.72
County tax	2,848.85	2,636.38
City appropriation	33,965.00	34,602.00
Overlays	951.73	1,396.13

Total tax..... $58,464.77 $61,133.28

The State tax this year shows an increase of $1,801.52 over last year, due principally to the higher State tax rate. Two years ago the city paid only $6,406.39, or but little more than half it is required to pay this year. The great increase the past two years is due to changes in the laws made by the legislature of 1909, but a large part of this increase, under the same laws, comes back to the city in increased school money.

The rate this year is .024 which is an increase of one and one-half mills from last year. No discount is allowed this year, and interest at one-half of one per cent. will be charged after Aug. 1.

CHARLES P. SILSBY DEAD.

Prominent Up-River Citizen Died at His Home in Aurora.

Charles P. Silsby, one of the most prominent citizens of the up-river section of Hancock county, died at his home in Aurora Thursday, July 6, after an illness of a few weeks, of cancer. The news of his death causes sadness to his many friends throughout the county.

Mr. Silsby was a native of Aurora, and all his life had been spent there, engaged in farming. He was seventy-two years of age. He was one of the leading citizens of his town, and held various town offices, such as selectman, school committeeman, etc.

For forty years he was county road agent for his section, and for nearly as many years he had served as postmaster at Aurora. He also represented his class towns in the State legislatures of 1874 and 1888. He was always a republican.

He was for several years a director of the Northern Hancock Agricultural society, and was always one of its most active promoters. He was a member of the Congregational church of Amherst and Aurora, and a consistent supporter of the church and its objects. He was a member of Esoteric lodge, F. and A. M., of Ellsworth.

He leaves a widow and three children—Herbert T. Silsby, Mrs. Albert E. Mace and Mrs. Leo Jordan, all of Aurora. The funeral was held at the house Saturday, Rev. Ada Garland officiating. Walter Gordon, of Brewer, sang.

WEST ELLSWORTH.

Mrs. John Carter is improving in health. Raymond Cunningham, who has been employed at Old Town, is home.

Willie Carlisle has gone to Bluehill, where he has employment.

Hollis E. Meader is home from Orono, where he has been employed, doing his haying.

John Oliver and daughter, of East Holden, were guests of Robert Carlisle and wife Sunday.

Maggie Hardison, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. H. P. Carter, is working for Mrs. Percy Tourtelotte.

DOLLARDTOWN.

Mrs. Wyman was a week-end guest of Mrs. Gertrude Stackpole.

Miss Grace A. Carter went to Presque Isle to attend the wedding of her sister Lura, July 5.

Mrs. Flora Trewoy was calling on relatives here Saturday on her way home from New Hampshire.

Percy and Robert McMaster, of Lowell, Mass., are spending the summer with their grandfather, Asa S. Barron.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized July 5 at the residence of Allen Moran and wife, Presque Isle, when their son, Arthur Allen and Miss Lura Pebe Carter, formerly of Ellsworth, were married. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. G. Clark, pastor of the Baptist church, of which both are members. Bert T. Carter, brother of the bride, was best man; Miss Ruby Moran, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. The bride was attired in white silk. The bridal flowers were white roses. A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Moran will make their home at Presque Isle. The wedding gifts were many and beautiful.

NICOLIN.

Mrs. Gertrude Carter, who has been boarding at Howard McGown's, has returned to her home in Bar Harbor.

Harry Maddocks has entered the hospital at Bangor for treatment. His many friends hope for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Susan Phillips, who has been visiting relatives here and has been suffering from blood poisoning in her face, has returned to her home at East Buxport.

The death of Edmund F., son of Frank Maddocks and wife, which occurred at his home about noon Wednesday, June 21, was a sad blow to his relatives and friends. Mr. Maddocks had been confined to his bed only a few weeks, but had been poorly for about a year. This spring he seemed to be improving. Mr. Maddocks was twenty-seven years of age. Much sympathy is felt for the father and mother. Funeral services were held at the church Friday, at 2 o'clock, Rev. P. A. A. Killam officiating. Nicoln grange, of which Mr. Maddocks was a member, attended in a body, and conducted services at the grave.

LAKEWOOD.

Homer Wilbur, of Marlboro, is spending a few days here.

Edward Garland is at work for Charles O. and Martin A. Garland.

Daniel Gray held services in the chapel Sunday forenoon and evening.

Ed. Mercer, of Hancock Point, spent Sunday with his aged father, Joseph Mercer.

Edna and Bernard Wilbur, of Green Lake, are visiting their grandfather, Simon Garland.

Misses Effie and Sadie Franklin, of West Newton, Mass., are visiting at their home here.

Irving L. Wilbur met with quite a loss during the terrible blow last week. He was repairing his barn, and had the work nearly completed when the gale laid the whole structure flat. There were three men in the barn at the time of its collapse but fortunately they escaped injury.

A gentleman, after dining not wisely but too well, arrived home at an early hour after scrambling upstairs, two steps at a time, he reached the top only to fall down again. Clutching hold of the baluster he exclaimed, "Heaven help the poor sailors at sea on a night like this!"

The masons of Manhattan gave a banquet. The toastmaster called upon one brother whose name was not on the program. It rather confused him. "Look here, Mr. Toastmaster," said he, "this isn't exactly fair. You have called upon me to make an ass of myself without any preparation whatever."

OBITUARY.

MRS. ADRIENNE I. RICHARDSON.

The many friends of Bertine B., wife of Adelbert I. Richardson, were deeply pained to learn of her death, which took place at the home of her mother on Oak street on July 5.

Mrs. Richardson was born in Ellsworth thirty-three years ago, daughter of the late A. Hoyt and Evelyn Beckwith Stevens. She was graduated from the Ellsworth high school in 1897. After graduation she went to Boston, where for a few months she was employed in a store, but owing to ill health was obliged to return home.

On January 21, 1901, she was married to Mr. Richardson, and their ten years together were very happy ones, marred only by her delicate health. She was a great sufferer from stomach and nervous troubles, but she bore them with noble Christian fortitude. A few months ago further complications set in, and the end became only a question of time.

Through it all she was tenderly and lovingly cared for by her devoted husband and family. Besides her husband she leaves a widowed mother and one sister—Altha.

The funeral was held at the house last Friday, Rev. P. A. A. Killam officiating. Interment at Woodbine cemetery.

MRS. LORENZO JORDAN.

America Ann, widow of Lorenzo Jordan, died this forenoon at her home on the Surry road, aged sixty-seven years. Capt. Jordan was lost at sea in the schooner Pepe Ramirez, about five years ago.

She leaves one son—Harvard C. Jordan, of this city, and a daughter—Miss Ella F. Jordan, a teacher at Jamaica Plain, Mass., who is at home for the summer. Mrs. Jordan was born in Eden, her maiden name being Thompson. Besides her two children, she leaves one brother—Frank Thompson, of Salisbury Cove, and one sister—Mrs. Sarah Clement, of Seal Harbor.

MRS. NEMEMIAN H. MEANS.

Rose L., wife of Nememiah H. Means, died early this morning at her home on the Surry road, after an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Means, whose maiden name was Rosalie Des Isles, was born at Lamaine seventy-six years ago. She married Mr. Means seventeen years ago. Besides her husband, she leaves one son by a previous marriage—Fred Cline, of Lynn, Mass., and a step-son, Capt. Everett S. Means, of Ellsworth.

The funeral will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Suicide at Verona.

Prof. Lyman D. Smith, of Hartford, Conn., committed suicide at Verona park Monday morning. Despondency because of ill health was the cause.

Prof. Smith, accompanied by his wife, left Boston Saturday morning for Verona, to spend some time with his brother, Freeman W. Smith. From Portland, Prof. Smith wired his brother to meet him in Portland, as he was ill. Later he wired that he was feeling better, and was coming through.

Meanwhile Freeman Smith had started for Portland and passed his brother on the way. Prof. and Mrs. Smith arrived here Saturday night, and went to Verona park. On Sunday, Prof. Smith appeared about the same as for some days past.

About daylight Monday morning he was found in the bath-room of the cottage in a dying condition from cuts in his throat, inflicted with his pocket-knife.

Prof. Smith was a man of high culture, a profound student and linguist, and an authority on penmanship. He was the originator of the Smith system, and had for forty-five years been teacher of penmanship in the public schools of Hartford. He was sixty-five years of age.

Baby Killed by Fall.

By a peculiar accident on the shore path at Bar Harbor last Thursday forenoon, Patricia, the eighteen-months-old daughter of Thomas Landers and wife, received injuries from which she died a few hours later.

The child was being wheeled along the path in a carriage by a little girl. The girl for a moment left the carriage which rolled forward down a slight incline and plunged over the ledge fifteen feet to the rocky beach below. The baby's skull was fractured.

IT SAVES YOU MONEY.

Dr. Howard's Dyspepsia Specific;
Regular Price 50c. Parcher's
Price 25c.

The special half-price sale of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia by G. A. Parcher means the saving of a few dollars on every family's yearly bill for medicines.

Mr. Parcher has so much faith in the superior merit of this medicine that he says: "If Dr. Howard's specific does not cure you, come back to my store and I will return your money."

This remedy is not an ordinary medicine. It is the favorite formula of a well known physician, and has the endorsement of hundreds of physicians of eminence in their profession, who prescribe it in all cases of constipation, dyspepsia or liver trouble, knowing from experience that it will make a complete and lasting cure.

Many advertisers forget that advertising space in a newspaper is valued according to the circulation of that paper. Advertising space in a journal without circulation is dear at any price the publisher may demand. Without circulation there can be no results, and without results the money which the advertiser invests is lost.—Leavenworth (Kansas) Times.

Short Sermons.

There is just as much danger in the riches you desire as in those you possess.

Your grip on success depends largely on the things you are willing to let go.

The world is more likely to be won by the cheerful religion than by the tearful kind.

When the devil is driving you he is willing that you should boast that you are leading him.

You cannot expect God to take the root of evil out of your heart while you are hanging on to the fruit with both hands.

Wet a cloth with a bit of soda on it and clean up the grease spots on your kitchen floor.

Jelly from berries picked wet is almost sure to mold and doesn't jell right. Try to pick them dry.

OLD HOME WEEK.

Mass Meeting Last Thursday Evening Gives Project a Boost.

The mass meeting at Hancock hall last Thursday evening, at which the Old Home week committee of the Merchants' association submitted its plans for the week, gave the project a big forward movement.

The meeting heartily endorsed the plans of the committee, and the announcement of financial contributions aggregating $75 gave evidence that this very material feature—the financing of the project—will be taken care of.

Incidentally, several of the speakers of the evening threw a few bouquets at the Merchants' association for its successful management of the food fair and Fourth of July celebration, and expressed confidence that the same management and enthusiasm would make a success of Old Home week.

President Estey, of the Merchants' association, presided at the mass meeting, and the secretary, Roy C. Haines, briefly outlined the plans for the week and the work so far done.

Short speeches in favor of the project were made by Harry L. Crabtree, Mayor C. H. Leland, Rev. P. A. A. Killam, Hon. John A. Peters, Rev. Edwin D. Kizer, Harry E. Howe, Mrs. Harry L. Crabtree and Miss M. A. Greely spoke for the ladies, promising their aid.

On motion of Dr. Kizer, those present at the meeting pledged their support to the project, and enrolled themselves as "Old Home week boosters".

CONTRIBUTIONS ANNOUNCED.

The subscription to the Old Home week fund announced at the meeting were as follows:

City appropriation.....	$300
Merchants' association.....	100
Burrill national bank.....	25
John A. Lord.....	25
E. G. Moore.....	25
C. H. Leland.....	25
C. L. Morang.....	25
C. R. Clorne.....	25
Harvey W. Morang.....	25
Union Trust Co.....	25
John A. Peters.....	25
Out-of-town subscriptions previously announced.....	50
Total.....	$675

In addition to the above, $25 subscriptions have been made by J. S. Donovan and D. E. Linnehan, about $25 more have been received from out-of-town friends, and local subscriptions already aggregating about $200 have been received by J. A. Cunningham, who has been appointed financial secretary, and is busy soliciting subscriptions. This brings the total subscriptions to date up to about $850.

Out-of-town contributors not previously reported are Howard H. Adams, Boston; Mrs. Charles Lawton, Chicopee Falls, Mass.; Mrs. Thomas B. Innes, Brockton, Mass.; H. B. Saunders, Portland; H. W. Cushman, Bangor; Juan T. Rosello, Porto Rico; Lawrence Carroll, Springvale.

DECORATIONS.

A scheme of decorations suggested for Main street contemplates a flag-pole with flags, lights and streamers at the bridge, and strings of electric lights and a flag across Main street at intervals up as far as Hancock hall, with flags only across the street from Hancock hall to the railroad.

Hancock hall will be decorated with flags and bunting, and the interior of the hall with evergreen, flags and bunting.

A. M. Moor, of this city, will have charge of the electrical decorations, and the decorating committee of the Merchants' association recommends C. F. Young & Co., of Lowell, Mass., for other decorations. A representative of the firm will arrive in Ellsworth the last week in July.

THE PROGRAM.

A few changes have been made in the program, which as now announced is as follows:

Sunday, Aug. 6.

Children's day—Mrs. Henry E. Davis, chairman, to select her own committee.
Play—Fred E. Cooke, Roy C. Haines, Harry L. Crabtree.

WHEN I WAS YOUNG

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When I was young, having procured an outfit of several camels, which I owned, and a score of blacks, whom I hired, I started southward from Tripoli to do a little exploring of the great desert of Sahara. I certainly couldn't explore much of it, for it is larger in area than the United States and only parts are ordinarily traversed. I chose to make an expedition straight south to the Sudan, along the route of caravans trading with that region. It is an ocean of sand, with billows of land except in spots where there are oases.

On the route we fell in with an Arab wanderer named Mohammed. Not all orientals are named Mohammed, but a large number are. He said he was a trader, but one of my men said that the way he traded was one sided. He gave nothing—unless bullets—for something. In other words, he was a robber.

But, like most of these people, he was very smooth spoken. He pretended to take a great fancy to me; said that he had heard that America was the greatest country in the world, and he was quite sure I was the greatest American. To prove his admiration for and confidence in me, he invited me to his camp and introduced me to his wives. There was one young and quite pretty (for an Arab) woman among them who, it seemed to me, was especially cordial to me. I could only judge by the looks she gave me, for she did not know my language nor I hers. Salam, my chief man, remarked to me that he had noticed the woman's preference for me. But, having no desire to get myself murdered on account of an Arab's wife, I did not propose to encourage the lady.

Mohammed journeyed beside us for several days, camping when we camped and moving when we moved. Had it not been for Salam I would have considered that the man had conceived a great regard for me, so naturally did he feign it. Salam said that he was familiarizing himself with our strength, our arms and the value of the loot to be acquired in case of a successful attack. Salam also ventured the opinion that the wife who was so favorably disposed toward me was probably intending, by her husband's order, to lure me into some position by which I could be put out of the way. Then my belongings would easily fall into Mohammed's hands. This view of the case did not favor the conceit of a man of twenty-two, and I did not believe him.

One evening my Bedouin admirer came to my camp to announce the fact that the next morning at dawn he would separate from us, going off to the east toward Marzuk. My intention being to proceed on my way to Ghat. He invited me to sup with him. Being young—as I have said before—I had a fancy to see once more the woman who had apparently conceived a regard for me. I desired to form an opinion as to whether Salam or I was right as to the genuineness of her demonstrations. I supped with her husband, but he kept his wives out of the way. This seemed to me to prove that there was nothing in Salam's theory. The trader feasted me royally and when I left embraced me with tears in his eyes.

"Whoever says," I remarked to Salam when I returned to my camp, "that an Arab is incapable of friendship doesn't know your race."

Salam made no reply, but did not seem especially impressed with my appreciation of the guileless nature of his brother Bedouins.

Two days after this we encamped one evening on the desert. It was a lonely spot, though no more lonely than all other spots on the Sahara. I was standing after dark admiring the bright stars above, contrasting with the monotonous scene below, when I heard the faintest kind of a sound within a few feet of me. It was like a spent bullet hitting soft earth. Turning, I saw an object a few feet from me. Going to it, I found an arrow sticking in the sand. Taking it up, I discovered a bit of wood tied to it. Taking it into my tent, where I had a light, I saw Arabic writing on one side. I called Salam and asked him to interpret it. He read it to himself and looked up at me with fear in his face.

"What is it?" I asked.

"It says, 'Make the fonduk.'"

The fonduk is a caravansary where caravans may get food, water and what is often more desirable, safety.

"From whom did it come?" I asked.

"There is no one near us."

"Mohammed is near. I suspect that he intends to fall upon us tonight. He will probably kill you, then give the rest of us bakshish to keep silent."

"But who could have sent this warning?"

"I think I have been wrong. The woman who saw you has really been captivated. It is she."

I told Salam to break camp, load the camels, and we would proceed on our journey.

While the preparations were being made I went out again to be alone with the sky and the desert. A new feeling had entered my breast. For the first time in my life I was conscious that a woman loved me. But I knew at the same time that our paths would be as wide apart as those of the great desert.

Before day dawned we made the fonduk.

Diana of Philadelphia.

At the mint in Philadelphia are a number of coins far more precious than any which find their way into circulation. They are a collection of curios, and many of them date from times of great antiquity. Perhaps the most interesting among them is a handsome coin bearing on its face the profile of a woman which has a striking resemblance to the goddess of Liberty of our own currency. Underneath is the single word "Demos," which is the Greek for people. On the reverse of the coin is a beautiful figure of the goddess Diana arching her bow, and the inscription translated into English reads, "Diana, Friend of the Philadelphians."

The coin was minted more than 2,000 years ago at the city of Philadelphia, in Asia Minor, where there grew up in later years one of the seven churches of which St. John writes. The prize was discovered some years ago in Europe by a citizen of our own Philadelphia, himself an authority on coins. By him it was appropriately presented to the mint in Philadelphia. —New York Press.

Carlyle's Sneer at Gladstone.

J. E. Boehm, the sculptor, once met Gladstone at a country house and was immensely impressed by the extent and diversity of the statesman's knowledge as revealed in his conversation. Boehm was still full of the subject when the morning arrived for Carlyle's sitting for a bust, and to the philosopher the sculptor poured forth his admiration for Gladstone's intimate acquaintance with subjects so far apart as gardening and Greek. Carlyle listened for a time in scornful silence; then he said, "And what did he say about your work?" "Oh, nothing," said Boehm. "He doesn't know anything about sculpture." "Of course," growled Carlyle, "of course, and he showed his knowledge about things that you didn't understand. No doubt if you asked Blackie he'd say that Gladstone knew nothing about Greek, and the gardener would tell you that he knew nothing whatever of gardening."

How Sheridan Paid a Debt.

No one knew better the power possessed by a really polished compliment than Sheridan, and on innumerable occasions during that rather stormy theatrical management of his did he extricate himself from a difficulty by means of one. A good instance is the following: An English nobleman who had married a beautiful actress once applied with much dignity in the greenroom to Mr. Sheridan for the arrears of her salary and vowed that he would not stir till they were paid.

"My dear lord," said the impetuous manager, "this is too bad. You have taken from us the brightest jewel in the world, and you now quarrel with us for the little dust she has left behind her."

The nobleman immediately burst out laughing, and the debt was canceled.—London Standard.

Graveyard Marriages.

A strange custom prevails among a certain tribe in the Caucasus. When a single young man dies some one calls upon a bereaved parent who has carried to the grave a marriageable daughter in the course of a year and says: "Your son is sure to want a wife. I'll give you my daughter, and you shall deliver to me the marriage portion in return." A friendly offer of this description is never rejected, and the two parties soon come to terms as to the amount of the dowry, which varies according to the advantages possessed by the girl in her lifetime. Cases have been known where the young man's father has given as much as thirty cows to secure a dead wife for his dead son.

Lightning Rods.

There were no lightning rods in ancient times. The first one that the world ever saw was set up by our own illustrious countryman Benjamin Franklin shortly after the year 1752. He had just had his celebrated experiment with the kite, in which he demonstrated the identity of lightning with electricity, and was therefore prepared for the construction of the rods for which the world had waited so long. It is not generally known that Franklin was as distinguished in science as he was in statesmanship and diplomacy.—Exchange.

As It Really Was.

On the morning after his first appearance on the stage the confident but untalented youth met a friend who had witnessed his first performance. "What do you think of my acting?" asked the would-be Hamlet.

"That wasn't acting," replied the friend. "That was misbehavior."

Men's Clothes.

Since 1825 the clothing of men has grown simpler and simpler, and if the course of evolution has taken away from the picturesqueness of the crowd it has added to the dignity of the man. —Men's Wear.

Unreasonable.

"I say, old man, you've never returned that umbrella I lent you last week."

"Hang it all, old man, be reasonable. It's been raining ever since."—London Punch.

A Faith Cure.

Towne—Do I understand you to say that Spender's case was really a faith cure? Brown—Yes. You see, the doctor and the druggist both trusted him. —Medford Drum.

Have a heart that never hardens, and a temper that never tires, and a touch that never hurts.—Charles Dickens.

Dr. Eugene Swan, Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting his mother, Mrs. Stella B. Swan, at her summer home.

Church services were held in the chapel Sunday. Prof. Sewall, of Bangor, preached to a large congregation.

Henry Wood and Charles Bartlett, Bangor, spent Sunday at the Wood cottage. They returned late Sunday night.

Merrill and Robert Burr, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., came Friday and are occupying the Thelberg cottage for the season.

Miss Beatrice Wellington, who has been the guest of Miss Elizabeth Thelberg for the past two weeks, returned home Friday.

Ralph Jordan, Mrs. Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. Carter, of Bangor, arrived Saturday. The party will spend a week at the Jordan cottage.

Both tennis courts have been repaired and laid out. They are in constant use. All dues should be paid in advance to Herbert Young.

Misses Dorothy A. and Helen Snyder and Dorothy King arrived last Friday from Saugerties, N. Y., and are guests of the Maxwells.

Dudley Baldwin, Boston, arrived last week and opened the Baldwin cottage for the summer. Mrs. Grace Baldwin is expected this week.

The shore road to Mount Desert Ferry has been opened to automobiles this year, although it contains many narrow stretches rather difficult to pass in.

Senator and Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Wiswell and Mrs. Peters, of Ellsworth, motored to Hancock Point Monday afternoon to escape the fierce city heat. They took tea at the Tarratine.

Late arrivals at the Tarratine are: Miss Sarah Kimball, Salem, Mass.; Miss Jane Brownell, Bryn Mawr; Mrs. A. B. Farnham, Mrs. E. C. Nichols, Mrs. Hannibal Hamlin, Ellen H. Butler, Bangor; Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Merrill, L. H. Merrill, Patten.

The Phillips-Exeter camp will not be opened this summer, and the boys will be much missed. The Princeton camp will be occupied this season, however. Prof. and Mrs. H. L. Crosby, of Philadelphia, have arrived and are making the camp ready for the coming students.

A jolly crowd of ladies arrived at the Point from Bangor Thursday and spent the day with Mrs. Edward Wood at her cottage. The guests were greeted by Mrs. Wood, Miss Margaret Wood and Mrs. Cutler. They were Mesdames Charles Oak, Frank Oak, George Hamilton, Free-land Jones, Alfred Webb, Albert Noyes, George Nutter, Leslie Allen, E. C. Ryder, A. L. Freese, A. H. Harding, G. E. Cushing, John Parker. A delicious lunch was served, after which bridge was indulged in. A violent shower came up during the afternoon, but the ladies departed in the midst of it, voting the day a great time.

Misses Edna and Rena Donnell have gone to Manset for the summer.

The ladies' aid society is conducting ice-cream sales Saturday evenings.

Dr. Norton and wife, of Stockholm, are guests at the Methodist parsonage.

Miss Gladys Bragdon, who spent the Fourth in Portland, returned Thursday.

Game-Warden George U. Dyer has been called to duty at Eagle Lake, Piscataquis county.

Miss Cassilena Perry is visiting her parents here since the closing of her school at Easton.

Mrs. Ula Gordon Miller, of Massachusetts, is visiting her parents, Fred Gordon and wife.

Guy Fernald and Miss Goyette, of Waltham, Mass., are visiting at the Fernald home.

Misses Eleanor Dyer, Geneva and Della Bragdon are at the Tarratine, Hancock Point, for the summer.

Victor Peavey, wife and little daughter, of Bangor, were recent guests of Mrs. Martha Harvey and other relatives.

The many friends of Mrs. Effie Bragdon regret her prolonged illness. Her sister, Miss Mame, is caring for her.

The many friends of Miss Florence Dunn regret the attack of lameness which necessitated her return from Northeast Harbor.

Walter Donnell, wife and two children, and his brother Bernard were up from Tunk pond to spend the Fourth with their parents.

A pleasant event one evening last week was the surprise party given Mrs. L. T. Bunker, president of the ladies' aid society. A social chat was followed by serving refreshments which the company brought, and the presentation to Mrs. Bunker of a handsome linen centerpiece as a slight recognition of her efficiency as director of the organization.

LAMOINE.

Mrs. Mary Holbrook Bartlett, widow of Dr. Ruel Bartlett, formerly of Lamoine, died at her home in Boulder, Col., June 28, aged fifty-five years. Mrs. Bartlett was well and favorably known here, where she had visited frequently, and many friends here regret to learn of her death. She leaves three children. The Boulder Herald says of her:

Words are inadequate to portray the lovely person and character of this woman. As a little child, as a young woman, as a teacher, as a daughter and sister, as wife and mother, she never had a superior. To know her was to love her, and the sweet testimonials which were sent her by her pupils and friends during her illness, proved that she was loved by all and that her work was fully appreciated.

During the nine years of illness of her husband, she was a most devoted wife and nurse, sharing her burdens with no one, standing up under difficulties that would have crushed any ordinary woman.

Good Work.

Done Daily in Ellsworth. Many Citizens Tell of It.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Ellsworth still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

Mrs. C. M. Alexander, 3 Washington St., Ellsworth, Me., says: "Some years ago I suffered severely from backache. The trouble was not constant, but came on in spells, and often I had to give up and go to bed for the remainder of the day. When I arose in the morning I had a terrible pain across my loins and was scarcely able to get around. My mother, knowing of my condition, procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills for me at Moore's Drug Store, and I began their use. I noticed an improvement after I had finished the contents of one box, and as I continued taking the remedy, I steadily grew better. From that time to this I have never had any serious recurrence of kidney trouble, and can praise Doan's Kidney Pills in the highest terms. Doan's Kidney Pills proved just as effective in my child's case, relieving him of backache and greatly strengthening his kidneys."

PROSPECT HARBOR.

Fremont Bragdon, of East Sullivan, spent a few days here last week.

Rev. Carl G. Horst and family, of Wallaston, Mass., are here for the season.

Irving Moore and wife have returned from a visit to P. T. Moore, of Bluehill.

Estwick Allen, of Allston, Mass., is spending his vacation at the old Allen homestead.

Mrs. George W. Colwell and young daughter are spending the week at East Steuben with relatives.

The young people enjoyed a clam bake on W. H. Moore's shore Friday evening, given for Ralph Moore and wife.

Mrs. Charles W. Badgley and Miss Annette Badgley, of Denver, Col., have arrived at Sarah Shaw's for the summer.

W. F. Bruce took an automobile party to Columbia on a fishing trip the last of the week. L. B. Deary, of Bar Harbor, and F. F. Hill, of Dorchester, were in the party.

Union church was well filled Sunday afternoon on the occasion of the annual Knights of Pythias sermon. Rev. Thomas Van Ness, of Boston, delivered a fine address, and it, together with the singing of the choir, which was augmented by the voices of Rev. Mr. Kohler and Rev. C. E. Bronson, made an inspiring service.

Halcyon temple, Pythian Sisters, enjoyed the largest meeting since its organization on any ordinary meeting night, at its last meeting Wednesday night. The degree was given to six candidates—two knights and four ladies. Sister Eva T. Stinson is the present most excellent chief, and the flourishing condition of the order is due mainly to her ability as an executive. Several are now waiting for admission. There were refreshments. A special feature which created much amusement was a holder shower on one of the bachelor brothers. During the heated season the meetings will be held but once each month, the first Wednesday.

One of the happiest occasions in a long time was the reception of Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Van Ness, of Boston, to their neighbors and friends of the village—the occasion marking their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The whole village was invited to their home, the Johns estate, which they bought a year ago, and which they have made so attractive. The old house set among the willows commands a fine view of the harbor and surrounding country. Mrs. Van Ness received her guest in her wedding gown of twenty-five years ago, and dispensed a most charming hospitality. The Van Nesses have spent their summers here several years, and now that they have made their home here, the village folk feel that they belong to them. One of the most pleasant features of the party was this spirit manifested and expressed by W. F. Bruce, together with twenty-five silver dollars which he presented in behalf of the village. Mrs. L. S. Ray served punch, while Mrs. E. C. Cole and Mrs. L. S. Whitaker served ice-cream and cake. The old house, with its quaint furnishings, and which is fast being restored, was open throughout for the inspection of guests. A large company enjoyed the most delightful hospitality.

A party consisting of E. A. Greene and wife, Dr. H. W. Small and wife, Lizzie Burns, Merle Small and Merle Greene went to Atlantic Saturday to Mr. Greene's boat, returning Sunday.

Although the Fourth was the hottest day ever known here, it was greatly enjoyed by everyone. At 3 there was a parade, the two most notable features of which were the floats representing the alumni association of the high school, and the Florence Nightingale society. The alumni float was decorated in the national colors, with a large alumni banner, and American flags and the banners of the different classes in their respective colors. The society's float was very prettily decorated in yellow and white with field daisies, under the direction of Mrs. George Beck. At 5:30 the ladies' aid society served supper at its rooms. In the evening the alumni association presented the three-act comedy, "A Bachelor's Divorce." Those taking part were Hazel Carman, Rose Thompson, Nellie Haskell, Agnes Greenlaw, George Joyce, Merle Greene and Roy Joyce. The play was followed by a dance.

REUNION.

The second reunion of scholars and teachers of district No. 10 was held Wednesday afternoon, July 5, when about 120 people who had formerly been teachers, pupils or descendants of such met at the town-house and spent a most enjoyable day. They came from nearly all parts of New England. Old friends met who had not seen each other for many years.

Excepting for the heat, the day was ideal. The forenoon was spent in talking over old days. At 12.45 a dinner was served, consisting of fish chowder, Penobscot river salmon, pastry, coffee and ice-cream. At 2 p. m. the seats were taken from the hall to the shade in the rear of the building, and an open-air concert was given, with the following program:

Singing, Darling I Am Growing Old
Audience Story..... Jonathan Bridges, of Sedgwick
Singing, Prof. Harrington and Miss Vannah Waldoboro.
Song.....Miss Harriet Staples, Rockland, Mass.
Poem.....Mrs. Clara Clapp, Sedgwick
Song.....Miss Ella Thurston, Sedgwick
Poem.....Miss Julia Wilson, Sedgwick
Song.....Gertrude Abbott, Livermore Falls
Song, Prof. Harrington and Miss Vannah.
Mrs. Annie Allen, Mrs. Beulah Allen.
Poem, Composed by H. O. Staples; read by Mrs. Staples.

A letter was read from Miss Hannah Ober and Miss Mary Marks, Waltham, Mass., also extracts from a personal letter from J. T. R. Freeman, Southwest Harbor, also a letter from Colin Oler, of Auburn, Mass., who wrote:

Dear Schoolmates and Teachers of Old No. 10:

Hearty greetings to you, one and all, and thanks for the notification of the meeting dated May 13, 1911. My debut at the school was about 1850, and my earliest memory of the event was of being in a box on a handcar with Flora Friend, drawn by Alonzo Friend and my brother, Alwyn.

All gone but myself. I recall the many teachers, too numerous to name, but all good and conscientious and hard workers. I recall a winter term, about 1855, possibly, when the school I think numbered 60; outside scholars from North Sedgwick. David Allen, Bailey Closson, Charles Closson and David and George Thurston from the River school, Jacob Dodge's sons, two Stover boys, Samuel Wilson and Benjamin Ober, also Calvin Herrick and Henry Pert. I recall the schoolhouse bill, with the snow worn almost to ice by the abundance of coasting, and the hurry to get such a start with another coast before the bell rang, that owing to speed attained we could not stop before reaching the foot of the hill.

I remember when Justin Staples dropped into poetry as follows:

"John and I, and Dan, and Bill,
All went down to Thurston's mill, ceiling,"

I remember when at an evening spelling school the dialogue of David and Goliath was given. Isaac Staples, of big frame, and tall, with a powerful voice, took the part of Goliath. Abel Staples, small and slim, with a feminine voice, took the part of David. (The scene opened: Goliath: "Where are thou, mighty man of war?" (The answer came in the squeaky falsetto voice) "Here I am!" The audience was convulsed.

These evening entertainments filled the schoolhouse, and were always interesting. In 1861, the beginning of the Civil war found these boys responding to the call, and a large percentage of them did not return.

I shall hope to join one of the reunions later and meet some of my former mates. Wishing you all success and long lives, I remain,

Very truly yours,
COLIN OLER.

A visionary rhyme was read by Miss Blanche Friend. It was taken from a school paper dated January 25, 1878.

This closed the entertainment which was much appreciated by all. Several responded with encores. Later a photograph was taken of the crowd. The following officers were elected: Frank Perkins, of Bucksport, president; James Bettel, Bluehill, and H. O. Staples, Portland, vice-presidents; Mrs. Lizzie Grant, treasurer; Miss Blanche Friend, secretary; Mrs. Donnie Ingalls and Miss Lizzie Grant, assistant secretaries.

The following committees were appointed: General committee, Julian Hooper, Pascal B. ## ISLESFORD.

Dr. Stover and family, of Boston, arrived July 1.

Mrs. John Brooks, of Cambridge, Mass., are at their cottage.

Harry Mayo, who has been attending Colby college, is home.

Mrs. Etta Richardson, of North Lamoine, is employed at Clarence Spurling's.

Dr. Ralph Seeley and family, of Springfield, Mass., are at their cottage on Eagle point.

Mrs. Lena Townsend, who has spent a few days at Mrs. Fannie Hadlock's, has gone to Marblehead, Mass.

Mrs. Crandel, who rented the Hotel Islesford last summer, has purchased the house and opened it.

Dr. Sweet and family, of Springfield, Mass., have rented Walter Hadlock's cottage for the summer.

Among other arrivals this week was Miss Olivia Bowditch and Miss Howard, who visited the island a number of years ago.

Congratulations are in order at Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Spurling's upon the arrival of a baby—Agnes Elizabeth.

Norris Steele, of Addison, is visiting his sister, Mrs. George Henry Spurling.

N. I. Bowditch and wife, of Framingham, Mass., have arrived for the summer.

Leslie Phippen accidentally blew a blank cartridge into his left hand on the Fourth.

G. H. Bottome, wife and two sons, Francis and Dudley, arrived at their cottage last week.

Abram Stanley, wife and "little nephew" are visiting Mr. Stanley's brother, Capt. Everett Stanley.

The ladies of the Thimble club held an ice-cream social at the church Tuesday afternoon and evening.

L. R. Hodgkins and son Merle, also Miss Florence Gibson, of Waltham, Mass., are visiting Mr. Hodgkins' sister-in-law, Mrs. Walter F. Stanley.

Vernor Gilley and Miss Waitie Frye were married at the home of the groom's parents, Albert Gilley and wife, July 3, by George R. Hadlock, esq.

Rudolph Spurling, while playing with a drawing knife, cut his leg above the knee pan into the joint. It was a serious cut, but the little fellow at this writing seems to be doing nicely.

Miss Carrie Grant, who was employed at the Gilley house, stepped from a boat the evening of July 3 and slipped, breaking one bone in her ankle, and tearing the ligaments. She was accompanied home to Cherryfield by a friend Saturday.

Edward Gilpatrick, of New Haven, Conn., was here Tuesday calling on friends.

Mr. Gilpatrick was on his way to Lamoine. He spent his boyhood days in Northeast Harbor, and not having been to the island for over twenty-five years, saw many changes in the place.

JEN.

Charles A. Campbell, of Gouldsboro, died Thursday morning, July 6, after a long illness of paralysis. Mr. Campbell was born in Calais sixty-eight years ago, but for nearly forty years had been a resident of this place. Thirty-five years ago he married Ellie E. Sowle, of Gouldsboro, who, with their only child, Linwood H., survives him. Mr. Campbell also leaves an aged mother—Mrs. Elizabeth McCarrick, of Otisfield, and three sisters—Mrs. Margaret Rolfe, of Gouldsboro; Mrs. Edith Cookson, of Winterport, and Mrs. Eliza Meserve, of Otisfield. He was one of the honored veterans of the Civil war, and a member of D. L. Weare post, G. A. R. He was always keenly alive to the interests of the order, and always an enthusiastic patriot. His death, coming though it did, as a relief from many weary weeks of intense suffering, was a heavy blow to his family, and they have the deepest sympathy of all.

GREAT POND.

Alfred Clarry, of Lowell, Mass., was here a few days last week.

Miss Inez Williams, of Ellsworth, is with her grandmother through haying.

This community was saddened by the death Thursday of Charles P. Silsby, a life-long and prominent citizen of Aurora. Much sympathy is extended the bereaved family.

The tornado of Thursday did a great deal of damage in this vicinity, stripping shingles from roofs, blowing barn doors from the hinges, tipping over fences and leveling trees. Carroll Mace and sister Inez were entertaining company at "Forest Home", middle branch. The road had to be cleared from fallen trees before they could get out.

The late Senator Elkins used to tell a story of Bige Brown. "Bige," he explained, "lived in Elkins. Meeting him one day in the main street, the Senator said: 'Do you know of anybody that's got a horse for sale?' Bige, chewing gum, gave the senator a patronizing smile. 'Well, senator, he said: 'I guess Bill Hurst has. I sold him one yesterday.'"

A DISGRUNTLED DETECTIVE

By TOM BROWNELL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Being ambitious after reading sundry detective stories to enter the profession, I went to an office and asked for employment. It happened that a man was wanted to go among a gang of footpads and burglars disguised as one of their kind with a view to learning certain facts concerning them. It was so dangerous a job that no regular detective would undertake it. These men know their own sort and would easily recognize a spy. I, being filled with the romance of detective work without having had any experience, tumbled to an offer of the job at once.

About 11 o'clock at night, disguised as a tough, I reeled into a saloon where my men were supposed to be. I found them there and invited them to drink. I treated several times and thought I was getting in with them when suddenly there was a hammering at the door, and the barkeeper cried: "Police! Git!" The lights went out, and we were all left in the dark, scattering like so many rats. The doors were broken down, and the police rushed in. When the lights were turned on it was found that the barkeeper and I were the only captives. How the rest got away I don't know.

I was taken to a station, and on the way I made myself known to the cop who walked beside me. He gave a broad grin and said that was the most beautiful device of all that were practiced in the criminal profession. I told him he would learn more about that in time. I slept in a filthy cell for the rest of the night and the next day sent word to the detective agency that I would like to have them come and get me out. They sent one of the employees, who had never seen me. Of course the police officers were not going to discharge me on any such evidence, or rather, want of it, and I told the man to go back and tell the one who had hired me to come and vouch for me.

He didn't come till late in the afternoon, and when he did he didn't recognize me. I told him I was the man he had sent to the saloon for information, but he looked at me contemptuously and said that the man he had sent had likely met with foul play and I was trying to get out of a bad scrape by personating him. He hadn't seen me made up, and my disguise was so perfect that he believed me to be a veritable villain. He went away without being convinced as to my identity, and I was obliged to spend another night in a cell.

A week passed, and I was still a prisoner. Then one day I was indicted as one of the men in the saloon when the police made the raid, who had made away with the detective that the agency had sent out. In other words, I was charged with being my own murderer. Upon inquiry I learned that the man who had thus been sent out on a mission had disappeared, and it was supposed he had been dispatched by the gang.

Here was a pretty how-do-do. I called again for the man who had sent me out, but he refused to come to see me, and I couldn't go to see him. I doubted if it would do any good if he came. He had never seen me but once, and then but for a moment. How could he be expected to recognize me in my rough garb, especially as in the saloon scuffle I had been very badly mauled?

I sent for a lawyer and told him my story. He appeared to believe me, but said there would be no use in putting such a story before a jury. It was so palpably false that it would prejudice my case. He said he would try to get up a defense that would seem more probable. I asked him if there was anything more probable than that a man could not have murdered himself and be alive. He replied that I would have to prove my identity, which was impossible. He would try to think of some method of defense that would be easier to prove than the truth. "We lawyers don't care anything," he said, "for the truth. What we want is something we can prove. An alibi affords the best chance."

When I came to be tried for being implicated in my own murder there was no proof against me except that I was known to have gone to the saloon from which I had disappeared and was one of the gang of rascals which was raided. This was considered prima facie evidence that I probably with others, had killed myself. It was evident that I would get a long term on general principles.

My lawyer's method was very ingenious. Having entered my claim to be another person than myself, John Borland, he brought John Borland's mother into court to swear that her son on the night of the supposed murder was at home and in bed. Another witness, who lived in the same house, swore to the same thing. Then my lawyer called upon the policeman who had arrested me to swear that I had been found in and taken from the saloon. The lawyer so badgered the policeman that he was not sure of me. Thus an alibi was established.

I was acquitted. But I didn't continue the detective business. I had had all of that romantic occupation I wanted. Detectives are all right in novels and in plays, but when it comes to the real thing they don't lead an easy life. Joe Petrosino, for instance, was one of the cleverest and most daring, but they got him.

Belinda's Orphan

She Brought Happiness to a Lonely Home

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"No, I don't want no orphan," said Miss Belinda, with a decisive shake of her head. "I've got my hands full now with chickens and young turkeys coming on and bees and currant bushes without bothering with a high flying youngster that'll scare the chicks and get stung by the bees, although they're warranted stingless, mind you, and to trample on my berry bushes. No, ma'am—no orphans for me!" This time Miss Belinda's lips clicked together with a little sound of finality.

"I'm sorry, Belinda, because the home is just about running over with 'em. I was telling the matron this morning that I knew there were plenty of folks in Little River who could give a good home to some of those youngsters if they wasn't so mean and stingy. Of course I don't mean you," added the local member of the visiting committee of the Riverview Orphans' home. "But sometimes when I think of all the spare beds, all made up clean and white, in the empty homes around here it makes my blood bile to look upon them poor orphans so crowded for room that Mrs. Hill says they'll have to sleep in rows crosswise of the beds pretty soon."

"I want to know!" ejaculated Belinda, with a startled glance at Emeline Brown. "I think you better stick to the truth, Emeline, and not exaggerate. Now, honest and true, how many orphans too many have they got up there?"

"Ten," replied Mrs. Brown flatly.

"Humph!" snorted Belinda.

In and out of the scarlet wool went her big wooden knitting needles as she rapidly constructed a shawl to comfort some shivering shoulders when the summer was over. Mrs. Brown watched her neighbor expectantly. With a family of seven sons and daughters under her own roof she was safe in the condemnation of the uncrowded homes of Little River. Here was Belinda Downs, now a handsome, well preserved spinster of forty-two, of independent means, possessing a snug home, a tiny income sufficient for her modest wants, a little shaggy pony and a rusty phaeton to carry her about the countryside. There was neither man, woman nor child to call upon Belinda for service, for she was without relatives, having outlived them all.

"I should think this was just the place for an orphan to be happy in," suggested Mrs. Brown, throwing an admiring glance around the small domain where orchard and garden were green and thrifty in spring bloom.

"I've got orphans enough as it is," snapped Belinda shortly.

Mrs. Brown smiled as she saw the fatherless and motherless strays which the lonely woman had gathered about her. There was a lame duck which Belinda had rescued after a hunter had brought it down with a glancing shot; a carrier pigeon which had dropped exhausted on her doorstep; a mongrel dog of many colors which had been faithfully scrubbed by Miss Belinda and was now much cleaner if not happier than in his soiled state; there was also a fine collection of homeless cats. Indeed, Miss Belinda's place might have been another orphanage, so thickly was it populated with waifs.

"Would you rather have a boy or a girl?" asked Mrs. Brown craftily. But Miss Belinda was not to be caught that way.

"I'd rather have a cat," she said. "You ought to be ashamed, Belinda Downs, the way you do talk! If you could see them poor young ones looking so wistful every time a visitor comes, hoping it's somebody to offer a home, you'd harness up Dolly this very instant and go and fetch one away."

"Might as well bring two while I was about it," remarked Miss Belinda ironically. "I've heard it said that it's cheaper for two to live than one. Ain't you heard that?"

"No, indeed. If that's the case, nine people ought to live for nothing, and I know we don't do that." Mrs. Brown jerked on her sunbonnet, shrugged her fat shoulders and without another word waddled down the path that led to the gate between the two places.

"Take an orphan, indeed!" sniffed Belinda for the hundredth time since the Riverview home had been erected. "Humph!" she ejaculated, also for the hundredth time.

Nevertheless, as soon as dinner was over Belinda did harness up shaggy little Dolly, and, climbing into the phaeton and holding the lines very high in her mittened hands, she drove through the pine woods down to the Riverview home.

"I'd like to look at some orphans," said Belinda to the matron when she was seated in the darkened parlor of the home. "What kind have you?" she added, just as if orphans were vegetables or fruit in the market.

Mrs. Hill smiled in spite of the summer heat that nearly overpowered her bulk of flesh. "We have all kinds, even if we haven't got all colors," she said. Thereupon there ensued a period of trying ordeals for tender hearted Belinda Downs.

Black hair and brown, red hair and tow, flaxen and pure gold all passed in review, and when it was all over there remained in the parlor a soft, round faced damsel of five years, with a soft mop of golden brown hair and a pair of eyes like brown velvet pansies shaded thickly with black. Belinda's heart was thumping rapidly while she interviewed the little girl for the last moment before giving her decision. The child was shy and gave timid, breathless little whispering answers, and Belinda loved her the more.

"Her name is Bessie Carson. Her mother died in the city hospital last March, and their records say that the child's father is dead. You can keep her for awhile, and if you are satisfied you can take out full papers of adoption if you wish to, Miss Brown."

"I guess I'll want to do that," said Miss Belinda as she arose to go. "When will Bessie be ready?" she asked, with a delightful sense of ownership in the dainty morsel of babyhood before her.

"This afternoon," said Mrs. Hill. "You won't find her much trouble. She's a quiet little thing and speaks of her mother and the little baby that died, and, strangely enough, she asks for her father. Where's your father, Bessie, dear?" asked the matron, bending down.

"He'll be back in a little while," said Bessie, running to the window. "I guess I better look for him, hadn't I?"

"Quaint, isn't she?" whispered Mrs. Hill as she let Miss Belinda out.

"Very nice little girl," said Miss Belinda, trying to keep the happy sparkles out of her eyes, for it did not seem right to grasp so much happiness as was promised in the possession of little Bessie Carson. "I'll drive down after Bessie just before supper."

All the rest of the day she was very busy preparing for her orphan visitor. There was a small bed to drag down from the attic and place beside her own, and it had to be made up with all the miniature bedclothing which she had used as a child. There were old fashioned dolls and other toys to be resurrected from hair trunks and brushed and refurbished, and there was a batch of delicious ginger cookies to be made so that she might fashion a dozen gingerbread men and elephants with currant eyes for the delectation of little Bessie.

At last when all was in readiness and the little girl had been happily transferred to the phaeton and allowed to drive the gentle pony home there was never such unalloyed bliss as shone in the faces of Miss Belinda and her little orphan. The child loved Miss Belinda and clung to her with affection when she had a chance, and Miss Belinda was almost ashamed of the opportunities she afforded Bessie for showing her affection.

"It certainly can't harm anybody to enjoy being loved," protested Miss Belinda to her sterner self as she brushed away a tear.

"Is you crying, Miss Linda?" asked Bessie wistfully.

"Just a teeny bit, dear, because you love me so much," smiled Belinda, bending to kiss her charge.

"I smile when you love me," confided Bessie. "It makes me feel so good here." She placed a tiny hand on her heart. Miss Belinda kissed her again.

That happened after Bessie had been there three months. The adoption papers had all been made out and filed and Bessie Carson had become Bessie Downs when one afternoon the gate latch clicked sharply, and a tall man strode up the path and looked strangely down at little Bessie playing with her dolls at Miss Belinda's feet.

From her chair on the veranda Miss Belinda arose with a sinking feeling at her heart. This man was not from the home, although there was a strange familiarity in his tall, lean figure, his tanned cheeks, with the firm, beardless lips and chin. He did not look at Miss Belinda, but he pushed back his hat and held out his hands to little Bessie.

"Bess! Darling little Bess! Don't you know daddy?" he asked hoarsely. With a startled cry the child looked at him earnestly and then ran straight to his arms with the unfailing instinct of the child for its parent.

Then the man looked up and saw Miss Belinda standing, white and shaking, before him. "I'm sorry, ma'am, but it's my little girl, and—Mercy! Linda Downs, what are you doing here with my Bessie?"

In the long, cool twilight there was time to relate how James Stearns and married the girl he had been engaged to when Belinda Downs met him in the west so many years ago and they had both fallen in love in spite of his previous engagement, but he had been true to his promise and married the girl who had been Bessie's mother; how one of the devastating floods of the west had separated the little family for months, and at last the wife and child had gone east in the hope of finding some of Mrs. Stearns' relatives. She had been taken ill in New York, registered by mistake under the name of Carson, had died and left the homeless little Bessie to the care of stranger hands.

In the meantime the distracted father had been hunting high and low for his family. He had traced them to New York, had proof of his wife's death and now had come to Little River to find that an all wise Providence had brought his little daughter into the empty, longing arms of the one woman in the world who could be his wife now.

When Emeline Brown heard of it she chuckled audibly. "Don't never sniff at orphans again, Belinda Downs," she admonished the bride. "You're under a debt of gratitude to me for pressing of you to take one."

But Belinda and her orphan-phaned no longer smiled contentedly at the man they both loved best in the world.
